

Amendments to the Abstract:

Please replace Abstract with the following:

An integrated circuit comprises one or more integrated circuit elements which may interact with other circuitry via one or more input/output pins. In the present invention the circuit elements include [[and]]an interface element for interfacing with external test circuitry. The interface element communicates with the external test circuitry via a single input/output pin dedicated for testing.